TIME Changes everything

In increasing numbers the "MALE" comes to ALABAMA COLLEGE

What do their smiles signify? Could their subject be co-eds

Four years ago Alabama College admitted men to its campus for the first time. This year those men will be a part of the 1960 graduating class. Thus the first phase of this new aspect of our growth will be complete.

Coedcation here has led to growth in many ways. It has meant increased enrollment, additional and more modern housing facilities, an improved Student Government, the introduction of intercollegiate sports, and a more active social life. The men have quickly become an integral part of our campus activities. They are SGA leaders, sports figures, College Night actors, and classroom intellects. Prodded by the impetus of such intensive competition, the women have been incited to exert greater efforts in all fields.

Men continue to enroll. Attracted by the favorable reports of the present male students and impressed by the vast new amount of public interest in the school, the men arrive on each registration day to take advantage of the opportunities afforded them here. Whatever each may choose as his major interest, he will find a superior faculty well prepared to guide him in his field. The creative facet of his personality can be expressed in the many extracurricular activities on campus: college theater, debate, choir, chorale, band, school publications, politics or sports. He may be rewarded for scholastic achievement by being accepted into an honorary fraternity. The beauty of the campus and the friendly atmosphere which prevails conspire to complete the requirements of the most exacting male.

In common pursuit of knowledge, men and women now join together. Side by side we endeavor to increase our mental proficiency and progress toward intellectual maturity. Socially we meet on tennis court, golf course, and dance floor. We share many mutual interests, aspirations, and ideals. Together we grow through coeducation.

ADDING to a burgeoning Student Body

Alabama College, in the few years since the admittance of men into campus life, has almost doubled enrollment. This surprisingly great influx of students has resulted in certain inevitable but not unexpected changes in the day to day lives and activities of the college citizen.

Today Alabama College is filled to near capacity, and, by simply viewing a crowded classroom, one can realize the vast changes which have occurred in the academic situation of the school.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable results of a continually growing enrollment is the use of two separate dormitories for men, these being Napier and Ramsay Halls. Ramsay Hall, which has in previous years been a women's dormitory, is being used to house freshmen male students.

Improvements are constantly being made in all campus departments and dormitories, making life at Alabama College enjoyable and challenging. The growth of coeducation on this campus has necessitated the trend toward an unrestrained amelioration of student lives, activities, and scholastic prowess. It is evident that coeducation is an accepted and necessary aspect of our campus life.

The Tea House means fun for everyone and lends a lively spirit to all A. C.

Crowded classrooms are a result of our increased enrollment.

The demand for a greater faculty draws to our campus many new faces.

DRAWING to our Campus a Greater Faculty

To keep the academic standards of Alabama College at a superior level, the various departments of learning strive to maintain the high scholastic ideals of the school by working directly with the individual, listening to his ideas and opinions, thus creating an atmosphere of understanding between instructor and student. This close association between student and instructor is most advantageous and rewarding to both.

Faculty members at Alabama College are outstanding pedagogues in their respective fields of endeavor, bringing a vibrant challenge to each student. It is through the inspiration given by these people that the men and women of this campus grow mentally and spiritually.

As the advent of coeducation has become a settled and prominent part of our collegiate life on this campus, academic departments, because of increased enrollment, have expanded and new ones have been organized. To continually provide the Alabama College student with the individual attention which has always been accorded him, new faculty members are imported annually in increasing numbers.

Because of the excellence and scholastic proficiency of each member of the administration, the men and women of this college are looking to the future with open, yet informed, minds.

EXPANDING AND ENRICHING

Our Day to Day Activity

The greatly increased male population on the campus at Alabama College has caused changes in almost every phase of the campus life. From the expanding physical facilities to the broadening of the curriculum, the college program has been revised and expanded to meet the demands brought on by the addition of the male student.

Napier Hall, or rather "The Country Club," as it has been sarcastically dubbed by envious women students, is one of the most striking examples of housing expansion. By 1959 the increased enrollment of men students necessitated the conversion of Ramsay Hall into a freshmen men's dorm. The addition of two parking lots, as well as work begun on several others, attests to the tremendous rise in the number of men and thus cars. Plans to increase classroom space in the very near future are also being made.

This classroom space will be necessary not only to accommodate the larger number of students but to allow for the broader curriculum and new courses which have been developed since the introduction of men students. This expanded curriculum includes courses for men in pre-engineering, pre-dentistry, pre-law, and forestry. Other courses have been altered to meet the needs of men students.

However, as opportunities for intellectual pursuits have grown and as men's sports have come to be an integral part of the college program, social activities have broadened commensurately. Socials in the recreation room of Napier, week-end parties, and additional formals during the year are but a few of the activities that have come about with the increase in men students. Other activities such as college theater, College Night, talent shows, and musical ensembles have been greatly enhanced by the presence of men on campus. The contributions of the men students to the TOWER, the ALABAMIAN, and the MONTAGE have been considerable and will continue to increase as the number of men students grow. The changes brought about by male students entering Alabama College can be seen in many ways: from seemingly insignificant changes in some traditions to major revisions in administration, the advent of the male on the Alabama College campus has been a step toward progress that has enriched and expanded our daily activities.

....marks another Milestone along our paths of progress

Alabama College has made great progressive strides in the year 1960. It has, in fact, become an example in academic circles of an institution whose efforts are always directed towards progress, towards growth. As a part of this growth, expansion, and maturation, numerous changes have been introduced. Each of these various changes are only denotative of much larger and more inclusive forward steps, as we become coeducational and each day gain in importance and prestige.

A new stride toward more closely-knit student government was made at the pre-school leadership conference begun only this year. From the first of September student leaders have met to plan freshmen orientation and to formulate year-long policies and projects of improvement. This new feature of school-year planning has already begun to reap results and will continue to do so, more and more as it is maintained each year.

The Physical Education Department has had many alterations since Alabama College became coeducational. Because of its excellent instruction and modern facilities, this department has attracted the male student in large quantities. As evidence, this year for the first time, a man has been named chairman of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Department.

Increased student enrollment naturally meant additional faculty and with this supplement came the need for expanded housing facilities. To meet this urgent need, the College converted the dairy building into striking, modern housing units. All of these changes and many more are milestones of our progress. They are a part of Alabama College — a part of our lives and our growth.

The MONTAGE of 1960 is Dedicated to DR. PAUL C. BAILEY

With great pride and sincere appreciation we, the Senior Class, dedicate the nineteen-hundred-and-sixty MONTAGE to Professor Bailey, whom we have come to know as a friend, to respect as an educator, and to admire as a real person.

Whether he is making the study of biology come alive in the classroom or conducting his experiments, Dr. Bailey has always typified the spirit of student-faculty cooperation of which we at Alabama College are especially proud.

As one of Alabama College's most popular professors, he serves as Professor and Chairman of the Biology Department, where he can be seen conducting experiments and research for the advancement of science. A true scholar, Dr. Bailey is a member of the Alabama Academy of Science, Torrey Botany Club, American Genetics Association, American Association for Advancement of Science, Association of S. E. Biologists and Sigma Xi fraternity.

Dr. Bailey is a brilliant teacher, inspiring each of his students to seek the study of sciences, and instilling in them a compelling curiosity to seek for the unknown.

We hope that this dedication will, in some small way, make him feel that his efforts have been appreciated.

President Howard M. Phillips

OUR PRESIDENT AND HIS FAMILY

Dr. Howard M. Phillips has now served Alabama College as its president for three years. Since his appointment to the position in 1957, Dr. Phillips has guided Alabama College in a program to strengthen the faculty, and to expand the physical facilities adequately to cope with a greater college. Coming to the president's chair with many years of experience and service, Dr. Phillips is known throughout the country as a teacher and lecturer.

We appreciate President Phillips' keen interest in the perplexing questions confronting students, and he has won deserved admiration and loyalty by his utter frankness in placing college issues squarely before us. Recognizing his unique abilities as a leader and a statesman, the college continually looks to President Phillips for important decisions.

Students meet him informally at open houses, baseball games, and receptions. We discuss our problems with him and feel proud that we can consider him our friend.

Alabama College's First Family.

IN MEMORIAM

As we the Class of 1960 move forward into new open futures, we take with us inspiring friendships, not forgetting cherished memories and living spirits of those separated from us during our life at Alabama College.

THERE SHALL BE NO NIGHT

And he showed me a pure river of water of life,
Clear as crystal,
Proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

In the midst of the street of it,
And on either side of the river,
Was there the tree of life,
Which bare twelve manner of fruits,
And yielded her fruit every month:
And the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

And there shall be no more curse:
But the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it;
And his servants shall serve him:

And they shall see his face;
And his name shall be in their foreheads.

And there shall be no night there;
And they need no candle, neither light of the sun;
For the Lord God giveth them light:
And they shall reign for ever and ever.

ADMINISTRATION

DR JOHN B. WALTERS
Dean of Alabama College

MR. JAMES R. WILKINSON
Dean of Men Students

MISS IVA B. GIBSON
Dean of Students

Responsible for the successful and smooth operation of Alabama College in all its facets are our competent administrators.

In recent years the phenomenal expansion of enrollment, the changing of the school to a coeducational one, and the accompanying innovations, has required of these leaders great strength of foresight and an awareness of goals to be reached. The administration, possessing the vital qualities of scholarship, leadership and ability, has in every case recognized the needs of the college and met them, capably and fully.

Dr. John B. Walters received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University. In 1957 he came to Alabama College where he was chairman of the Social Science Division and, later, acting Dean of Men. Dr. Walters, in a short time, has become a favorite here, is loved for his amicability and is admired for his intellect by students and fellow colleagues. John B. Walters assumed the office of Dean of Alabama College this year. We know he will fill it well.

With Alabama College firmly established as a coeducational school, this year the need was felt for a Dean of Men—formerly only a temporary position.

Our new dean earned his B.S. and M.E. degrees from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio and was Assistant Dean of Students at the University of Alabama last year. Aiding in the Physical Education Department as well as assuming his primary post is James R. Wilkinson, first official Alabama College Dean of Men.

Miss Iva Brannon Gibson, Dean of Students, is noted for her congeniality and willingness to serve the best interests of the college she loves. It is her job to help and advise students whenever they are in need. Dean Gibson takes pleasure in her work and shares this happiness with all her acquaintances. Her delightful personality is indeed an asset to the Alabama College campus.

MR. LEE A. BARCLAY
Business Manager

MISS VIRGINIA HENDRICK
Registrar

PUBLIC RELATIONS

MR. RALPH W. SEARS
Director of Public Relations

Dietician of the college is Miss Mary C. Forbus. She is in charge of planning the most nutritious and well-balanced meals possible for the lowest cost. Miss Forbus always attempts to please the students by making the meals appealing and varied.

MISS MARY C. FORBUS
Dietician

Property, expenditure, income, and capital are all part of the responsibility of Lee A. Barclay, Business Manager at A.C. Mr. Barclay, well-qualified for this post, received his B.S. degree from the University of Alabama and his M.A. at the University of North Carolina. Since 1951 Mr. Barclay has handled this all-important aspect of college management.

Miss Virginia Hendrick serves as Registrar of our institution. She is always willing to lend a helping hand to students who seek guidance and help with regard to their curriculums.

Mr. Ralph Sears joined the A.C. staff in 1952 as Director of Public Relations. His is an informative service — keeping Alabama College in the news via the media of radio, television, and daily papers. Through the work of his office, the public is made aware of the changes, progress, and growth of the college.

Alumni Director of the college is Miss Helen Newton. She is well-known to the alumni of Alabama College as well as to present students on campus. She does an excellent job of directing our alumni program.

Director of Operations and Planning Engineer is Mr. Aubrey C. Folsom. Accompanying the vast growth of enrollment here is the need for more housing facilities, parking lots, and careful maintenance of older buildings, all making his job one of increasing importance. The erection of new buildings, the construction of the new parking lots and the care and repairs of the grounds are under the direction of this capable man.

The Assistant Treasurer at Alabama College is Mrs. Bessie M. Elliott. She is responsible for handling registration fees, payrolls and other items of business as well as performing the duties required of her as assistant to the business manager.

Director of Student Health Service, Dr. L. C. Parnell, M.D., has his office in Peterson Hall, the College Infirmary. With humor and kindliness Dr. Parnell goes about his job of keeping the faculty and student body in the best of health.

CLASSES

During the four years the class of 1960 lived at Alabama College, we witnessed many changes in ourselves, on our campus, and in the world around us.

Graduation day was anticipated by all of us during our entire stay at Alabama College. In preparation for that important day, however, we carried on many activities and we learned the value of time above all things. Classes here at Alabama College gave us knowledge which we were eager to attain; we came to welcome the challenge of an education more than ever before. A spirit of cooperation was developed in our class along with our acceptance of responsibilities during our four years in college.

In May 1960, on our graduation day, we made our last walk down the aisles of Palmer Auditorium. We had come here four years before filled with anticipation of what college held in store for us. At the end of the four years we graduated and we had learned that college was something different for each of us. Yet, for all of us it serves as a doorway to the world within ourselves and to the world outside.

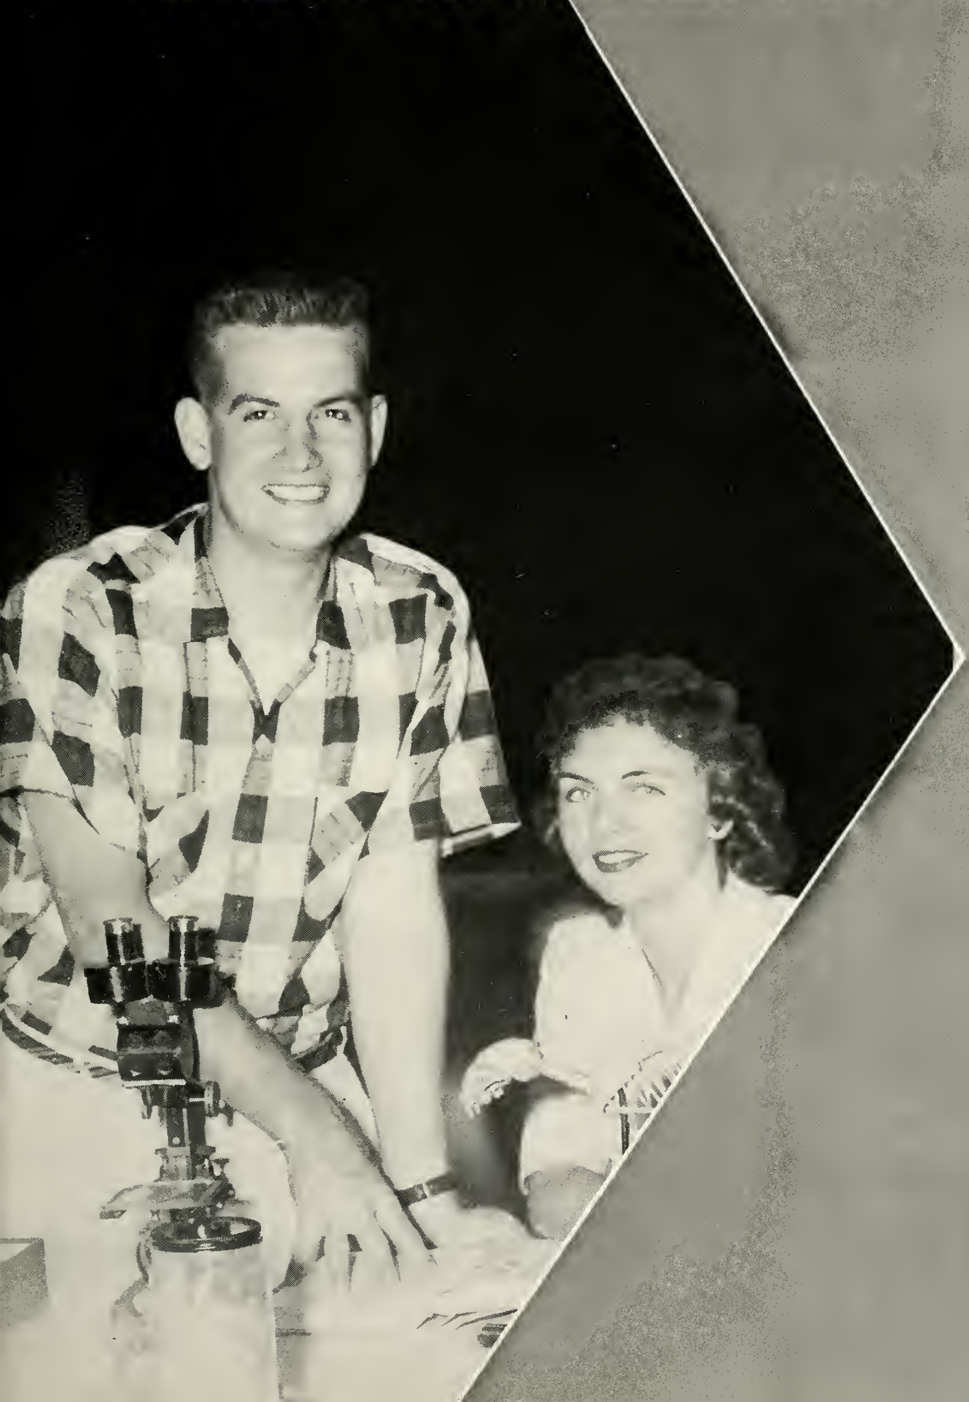
DEPARTMENTS



ART

Art is a major part of student life at Alabama College. We are drawn into a new appreciation of art's beauty in its many phases through various works of famous artists which are exhibited in Comer Hall throughout the year by the Art Department.

Mr. David Huntley heads the Art Department and is assisted by professors, Mrs. Virginia Barnes and Miss Martha Allen, who all work diligently to help their students discover and fully utilize their artistic talents.

The department offers many various courses for both the major and the non-major. Some of the more detailed courses offered are painting, commercial art and design, ceramics, art education and art history.

BIOLOGY

As the advent of coeducation has produced a fluctuating and continuous enlargement in the various physical and academic aspects of Alabama College, it has also had a similar nurturing effect on the Department of Biology, one of the most outstanding departments on this campus. As the student population of a school increases, demands are made for improvements and expansions in departmental facilities. This is exemplified in the increasing number of academic courses which are offered to the scholar majoring in Biology. Courses such as physiology, embryology, anatomy, field biology, genetics, histology, and bacteriology are offered to the student who wishes to study the more detailed and intricate entities of this science.

The Department of Biology is competently headed by Dr. Paul C. Bailey and served by Dr. Gideon Nelson, Dr. David Cotter, and Mr. George Lipe who are all preponderant scholars in their chosen profession.

DR. GIDEON E. NELSON

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The Business Administration Department is truly one of the most populated departments on campus. Coeducation is ever evident in the Business Administration classes as a great many of the men students are studying in the fields such as management and accounting.

Students studying Business Administration at Alabama College are confident in the strong background in various business activities preparing them for successful futures in the business world. Curriculums are provided for those wanting to specialize in particular fields of business such as accounting, retail economics, or marketing.

The Business Administration Department is headed by Mr. Lee A. Barclay; other professors are Mrs. Sara Morgan, Mr. Ervin A. Johnson, and Mrs. Kate Sneed, all dedicated to preparing their students for success in their business life.

CHEMISTRY

The Atomic Age and the Age of Space is opening vast new studies in chemistry today. We at Alabama College are proud of our chemistry department devoted to leading its students to a better understanding of known facts and presenting new ideas to challenge the minds of the future.

Our growth through coeducation has in turn meant a growth in men and women students majoring in chemistry. There are courses in general chemistry offered to non-majors as well as majors; these provide an opportunity for most of the student body to gain some knowledge and understanding of our world of chemistry in every-day life, plus a view into specialized fields of chemistry. Courses are offered to students working toward positions such as medical technicians, dieticians, science teachers, and research chemists; these courses include quantitative and qualitative analysis and organic chemistry.

Mr. W. J. Kennerly is chairman of the department and we welcome Mr. Joe B. Barkley and Mrs. Beulah Whaley as new professors in this department.

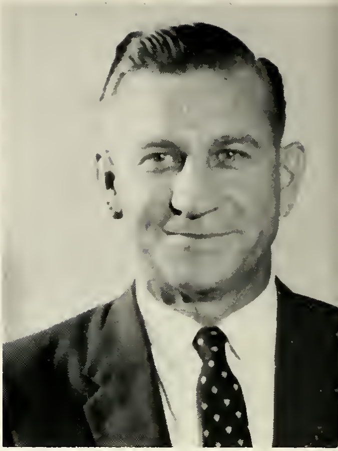
EDUCATION



DR. E. P. LAUDERDALE

DR. CHARLES L. GORMLEY
Professor and Chairman

Students at the Montevallo public schools are having unique experiences now as far as practice teachers are concerned. For many of them it is their first experience with men teachers. It is gratifying to see that many students from Alabama College enter into the teacher training program, and that the male has made a place for himself in this field too.

This phase of the departmental work is directed by Dr. E. P. Lauderdale on the high school level and Miss Minnie Dunn on the elementary level. Chairman of the department and director of the Placement Bureau is Dr. Charles L. Gormley. This personnel seeks to prepare students for the most important task of teaching. Students are given the opportunity of contact with the teaching situation, as well as instruction in the essentials of teaching.

MISS MINNIE DUNN
Associate Professor

Education majors observe in the Nursery School.

"Varied" and "exciting" are words that can be used to describe the many areas of English and literature taught by the English department at Alabama College. This essential group of teachers in our college challenges us as students to enlarge our knowledge of the world's literature and to grow in the areas of communication and expression which we utilize every day.

All of us on Alabama College campus are reached by the English department during our years here. We may be taught freshman English or sophomore literature by almost any member of the department.

Coeducation has made its impression on the English department too. Larger English classes and more of them have presented verification of the fact that our college is growing and that the English department is adjusting to this increase in student enrollment. Truly, this important department on our campus is accepting the changes brought about by coeducation, and it is continuing to provide the students with a vast store of knowledge to be secured and utilized by all.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Alabama College is fortunate to have Dr. Lorraine Pierson and Miss Elizabeth Stockton serving as faculty members in the department of foreign languages. These teachers, through their interest in students at Alabama College, have become important people in the lives of many of our students.

Miss Stockton's Spanish students receive first-hand information of activities in Spanish-speaking nations because of her broad knowledge and interests in her field. Students in her classes are usually enthusiastic and ever conscious of Miss Stockton's efforts to help them learn and understand the Spanish language.

Dr. Pierson, as head of the department, is the teacher of French and German. Her experiences in Europe have helped broaden her knowledge of the languages she teaches. She is a friend of countless foreign students who have attended Alabama College and of those who are presently studying here.

Coeducation on our campus has brought the appearance of male students in Spanish, French, and German classes. The growth of student enrollment has witnessed larger classes in the foreign languages department and both Miss Stockton and Dr. Pierson anticipate with genuine enthusiasm a larger enrollment in the future.

HOME ECONOMICS

Dr. Lois Ackerley, Miss Ethel Bickham, Miss Mabel Owsley, Miss Mary Larkin, Miss Sara Nell Lightsey, and Mrs. Florence Folsom are the members of the home economics department on Alabama College campus. Faculty members of this department are among the most sought-out people when we as students are interested in giving social functions or in attending them. In addition to giving us tips on social "do's" and "don'ts", members of the home economics department teach courses which lead to majors in vocational home economics, institutional economics, and retail economics. Classes are conducted in the areas of child care, home management, clothing, food preparation, and family interests. In addition to attending the classes actually carried on by the home economics teachers, home economics majors are given the opportunity to live in the home management house and to work at the college nursery school, thus actually applying the principles they learn in the classrooms. Majors in the field of retail economics are required to work in department stores in order to enlarge their knowledge in their chosen field.

The home economics department, too, has felt the impact of coeducation on our campus. Men students have made their appearances in the foods and family health classes. Here, too, the growth in student enrollment has resulted in larger classes and longer hours of "homework" for members of the home economics faculty. The growth in student enrollment has been met with enthusiasm and growing interest by the home economics teachers who are constantly sharing the anticipation of the students.

MUSIC

Rich tones of tenor, baritone, and bass float down from the windows in Calkins: another evidence of the growth through coeducation. Where once only feminine voices were heard, and instruments knew little of the masculine touch, we now have manpower behind our "sweet music."

Vocally, the male can participate in the College Choir directed by Associate Professor Bruce Tolbert. The Opera also affords a channel for vocal talent as does the regular voice instruction. With these areas there is cooperative effort by the co-eds. In addition, there is the College Chorale for girls directed by Miss Elizabeth Armstrong. For those interested in instrumental music, there are units such as the Band, Brass Choir, the Woodwind Choir, and piano ensembles plus the private instructions.

PHYSICS AND MATHEMATICS

Affected by the incentive to expand in various educational facilities, Alabama College has succeeded in offering an extensive series of more advanced studies to the student whose interest lies in the field of Physics and Mathematics. To provide a more diverse selection of courses within this department, basic courses in pre-engineering are being included within its academic facilities.

Growth in staff membership resulted through the annual increase in student enrollment within this department. Dr. D. R. McMillan is Chairman of the departments; he is assisted by Mr. Paton L. Woodham, Mr. Neal Shirley, Mr. Donald C. Stevens, and Mr. John F. Suttle who is the instructor of basic engineering. As the student enrollment of the college becomes greater, resulting from the change to coeducation . . . so shall this department continually expand and make additions, serving to provide a more inclusive education for the student interested in Physics and Mathematics.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Physical Education facilities at Alabama College, through the consequence of coeducation, have been enlarged and improved upon to satisfy the needs of a steadily increasing student enrollment. General recreational activities, in addition to the many diverse courses offered to the majoring student, are an important segment in the general program of the Department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Representing one of the more outstanding facets of this department is the teaching staff which it employs. This staff of instructors is headed by Dr. Chester L. Palmer, the first male chairman of the department. Through the talents of these instructors, a wide variety of sports and activities are offered for the student's selection. Particularly illustrative of the coeducational aspect of the college and its effect on this department is the organization of intramurals and intercollegiate events in various sports such as football and baseball which have become symbols of the coeducational system.

PSYCHOLOGY

The department of psychology at Alabama College is growing right along with the demands put upon it by the increased enrollment. Since the advent of the male at Alabama College some four years ago, both the staff and facilities have been enlarged.

Under the direction of Dr. Vickery this department includes teaching in the field of general psychology, which most students avail themselves of and find extremely useful, and more specific and advanced courses necessary for the student majoring in this field. However, this department does not limit its work to these areas but also offers guidance, personal counseling, and testing services available to every student. Thus knowledge in the field and practical application of the principles of psychology are the aims and achievements of this vital department.

The department of Social Science, one of the largest departments on campus, includes many fields which combine to form a most important part of the curriculum at Alabama College. The department is composed of a group of outstanding scholars and is fully equipped to provide the students of A. C. with a great deal of knowledge in the various subjects taught by its faculty members. Included in the Social Science department are geography, political science, social science, social work, and sociology. This wide range of courses is designed to stimulate the student intellectually and to give him basic knowledge of the subject in general. Specifically, in the case of a student majoring in this department, the purpose is to give special training toward his individual field. This department, with its dedicated staff, continues to meet the increased demands of the larger numbers of students, constantly challenging the students, still achieving quality with quantity.

SPEECH

"Curtain call!" With the sounding of these words we picture the opening night of a play when the product of long hours of practice and hard work is to be presented. In the college theatre the speech department has an excellent channel for fostering use of the principles of speech. In addition, the students majoring in speech correction have a laboratory in which they can practice what they learn. This is the Speech and Hearing Clinic.

Many courses are offered by this department to benefit the non-major as well as the speech major. These courses are valuable not only in daily conversation but for those who work on the college radio staff or debate team as well. All students, women and men, should profit as a result of this department.

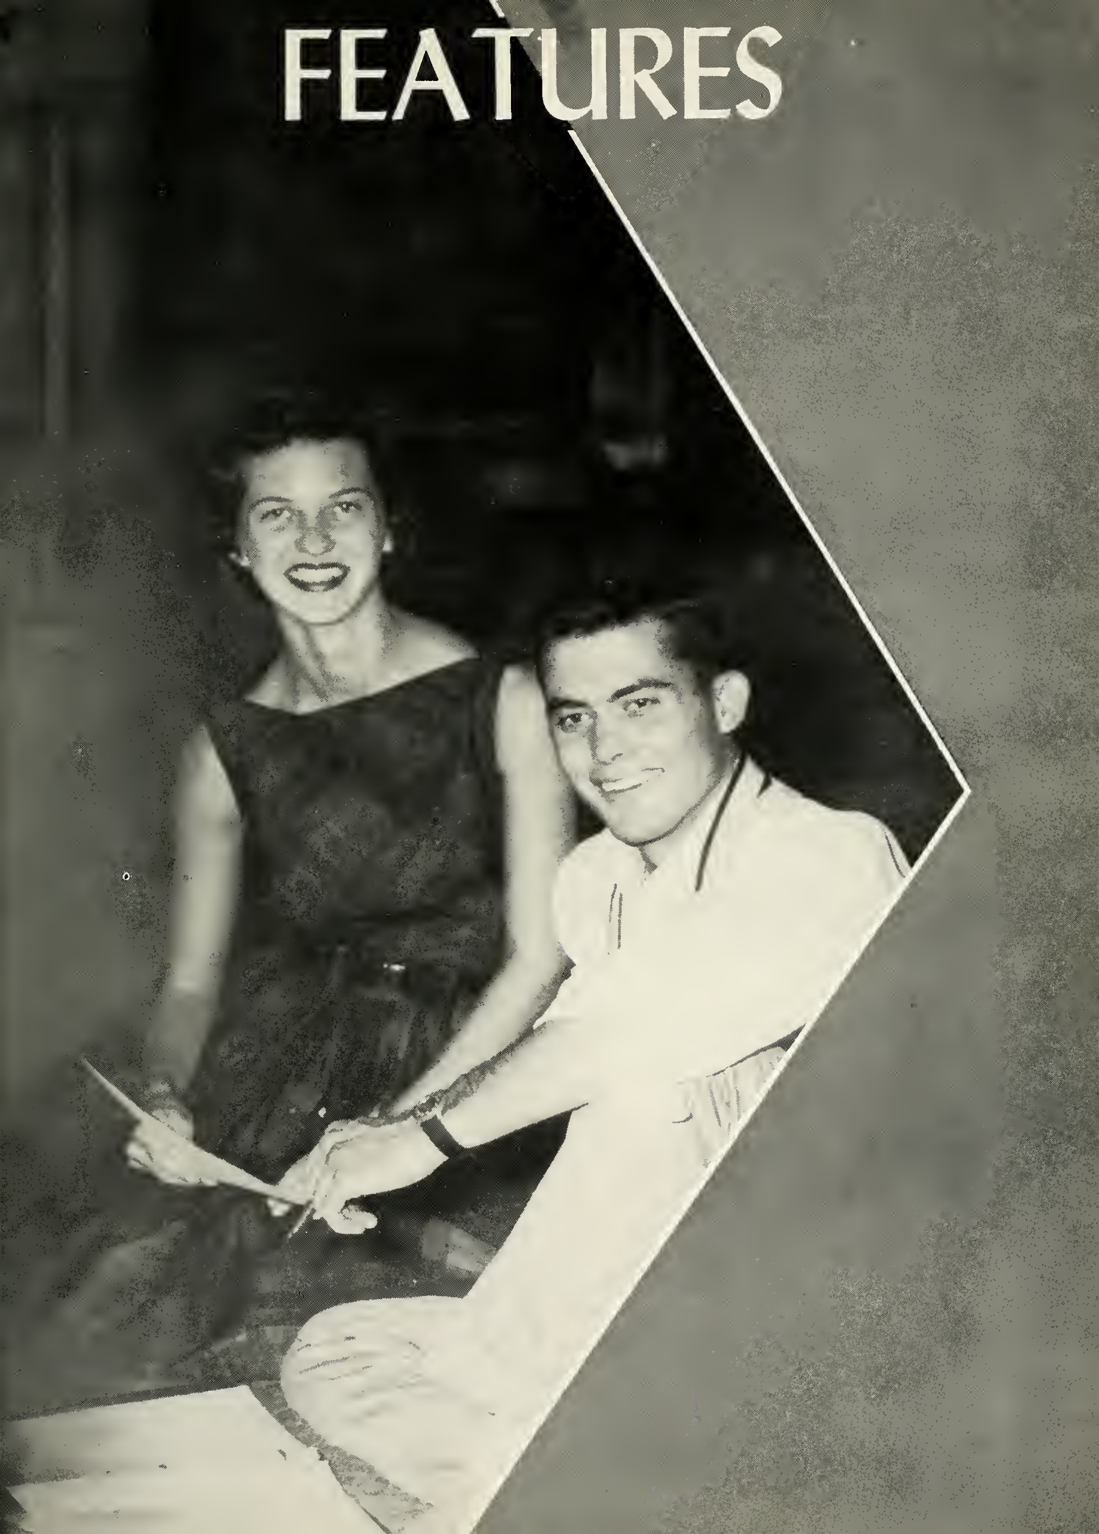
FEATURES



Miss Alabama College

To most students here, the title of Miss Alabama College carries with it responsibility as well as recognition. Miss Alabama College not only represents the achievement of the girl who is chosen but the achievement of the college whose purpose it is to educate, broaden, and develop the total person so that she can make worthwhile contributions whether on the campus, in the home, or in a profession. Miss Alabama College is not an ideal—she is a reality. It is by her leadership, scholarship, character, and hard work that she has become the example. This year, Miss Alabama College of 1960 is Janice Wood, who wears the title well.

Dear Mr. Harrison

There I've done it! The winners listed in numerical order are 7, 16, 21, 28, 33 and 37. I'm sure what I've done will make numerous enemies for me! But before you think too harshly of me, may I remind you that mine was a valorous task, fortified not at all with any room for discretion. I wish I could have pronounced all the young ladies winners, but you limited me.

My thanks for honoring me with this great privilege.

Most sincerely,

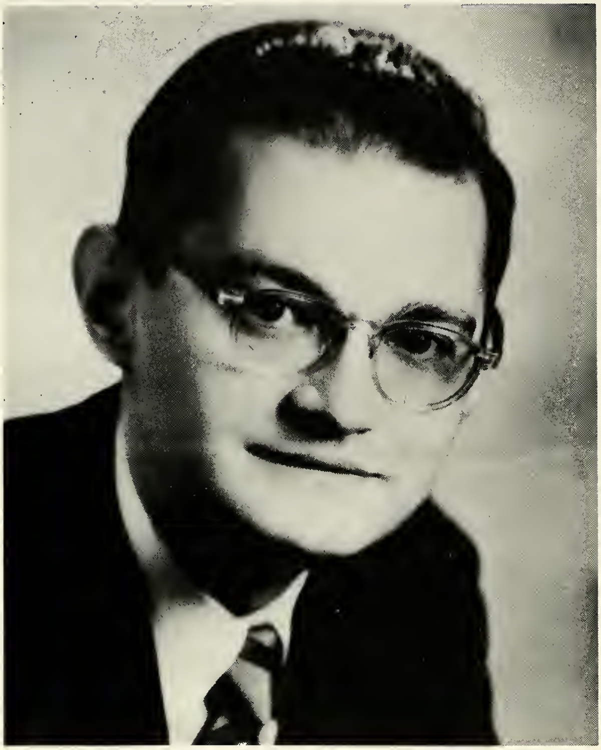
CONCERT, LECTURE, AND ORGAN SERIES



David Craighead has been a prominent figure in the ranks of concert organists for a relatively short time, but he has already managed to earn himself a reputation such as is seldom vouchsafed to so young an artist. He combines his concertizing with the responsibilities of a large class of students and an important post as organist of St. Paul's Episopal Church in Rochester, New York.

Ferrante and Teicher, one of the most dynamic and popular duo-pianists in the musical scene today, played with brilliant clarity and beauty of tone. The audience was fascinated with their extraordinary sound effects.

The Roger Wagner Chorus, Orchestra, and soloist were magnificent in their superlative blend and balance under the sensitive direction of Mr. Wagner.

The character and grace of opera, memorable classics, plus the Choral's rendition of favorite folk songs held the audience spellbound with enchanting music.

Bernard Peiffer and his Jazz Trio struck a winning blow at Alabama College. Their lilting syncopated beats captivated the audience in the liberated rhythms and in the magnetic charm of Mr. Peiffer.

Woody Herman enamored the hearts of his audience with the lulling and swinging rhythms of his band's famous dance tunes. Accompanied by his solos on various instruments, he brought to life the real spirit of dance music.

Betty Louise Lumby, Associate Professor of music at Alabama College, has presented two concerts in the 1959-60 Organ Recital Series. In 1956 she was the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship to Western Germany for a year's study under the eminent blind organist, Helmut Walcha. She has won several awards for compositions in the Birmingham Festival of Arts, and was recently honored by inclusion in the first edition of Who's Who Among American Women.

Peter Hurford, Organist and Master of the Choristers of the Cathedral and Abbey Church of St. Albon, England was presented by the School of Music of Alabama College in a Concert early in April of this year. Mr. Hurford has played organs all over Europe. He is now touring the greater part of the United States visiting some of many churches in the States dedicated to St. Alban.

This year's Orchesis performance, executed with foscinating grace, consisted of four different suites. The first suite of conflicting emotions included hate, frustration, surprise, and fear. Typicol dances from Hawaii, Africa, and west India were depicted in the second suite. Next today's men of expression, the Beatniks, were presented followed by selected interpretations from some of Broadway's Musicals.

"The Teahouse of the August Moon" was the first College Theatre presentation of the season. The setting was in Okinawa, and action was set during the years of the second World War. Its story was related in a highly comical situation, that being the United States Army versus the colorful oriental natives, their customs and peculiarities, and the dazzling Geisha Girl.

Miller has used this historic theme to write an effective appeal for tolerance of modern day free thinkers.

DRIVES WEEK

Elite Night 1999 - as depicted by the Junior Class

KISSING BOOTH

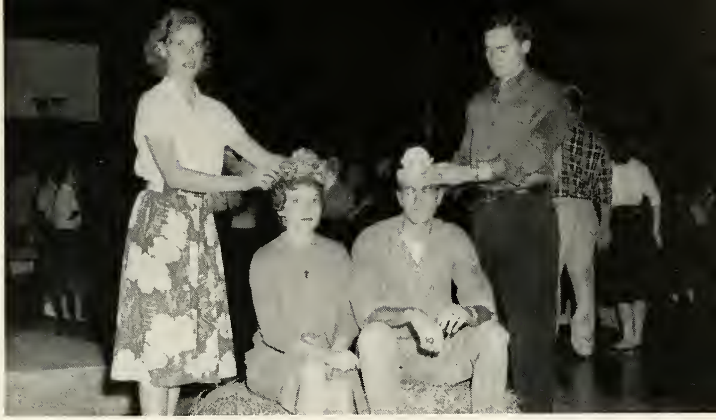
ORTUNE TELL

What does the future hold for you - rich man, poor man?



Drives week is a campus-wide cooperative effort to raise money for charity. For each of the events of the week a small fee is charged. Students vote on favorite charities and the money is divided according to the percentage vote for each charity.

Suppressed Desires Day is one of the most looked-forward-to events of the week. On this day the student is allowed to wear sportswear to class, scream in the library, smoke at the dining table, and fulfil numerous other desires that the students supress all year until they can give full vent to them on this day of days.

Another event of the week is the county fair, sponsored by W. U. S. It featured a cake walk, a kissing booth, selling of candies and candied apples, plus various other activities and entertainment.

The highlight of the week was skit night. Each class as well as the faculty wrote and presented a skit. The faculty skit received the highest rating. The Senior auction took place between each skit. The seniors were auctioned off to the underclassmen to do odd jobs such as shining shoes, washing or ironing, washing cars, and other activities.

A parade, made up of the Montage beauties, Miss Alabama College, and led by Alabama College's band concluded the week's activities.

The amount raised this year was $343.32. Cancer, Muscular Dystrophy, and Cerebral Palsy are the three charities receiving the money that the students raised during this week.

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Freshman orientation begins with the arrival of the freshmen on campus early in September. When the freshmen arrive, they are met by upperclassmen who help them move into their rooms and get settled. In Main lobby there is activity on every corner with the long registration line where the freshmen get their schedules for the first two weeks of their stay at Alabama College. Then they can get a cup of cool punch and some cookies served by the social committee.

The second important thing the freshmen do after their registration is buy a "rat" hat. The wearing of "rat" hats is a freshman tradition on Alabama College campus and all freshmen are supposed to print their names on the caps and wear them any time they appear outside their rooms with the exception of church attendance. In addition to wearing "rat" hats freshmen are supposed to address all upperclassmen with "Mr." or "Miss."

As a beginning of their scholastic activities the freshmen do their official registering for classes during the first day or two they are on campus. The excitement of registration and the official entrance into college life holds forth for an entire day while freshmen sign up in their major departments and then wait in the lines at Palmer to pay their tuition fees.

The first week-end on campus is party week-end for the freshmen. This year the freshmen—upperclassman—or "Big Brother—Little Brother"—"Big Sister—Little Sister" party featured a Roaring 20's theme. Everyone came in costumes from the 20's era and the entertainment centered on the Charleston dance and other popular "20's" songs and fads. The 20's fashion show was made up of the students who attended the party. One girl and one boy were chosen as the most typically dressed for the era.

A second part of the entertainment for the freshman orientation program this year was the Freshmen Talent show. Voluntary talent in the form of singing, dancing, and readings was supplied by the freshmen, and Palmer auditorium was the scene of the show which was attended by both freshmen and upperclassmen.

Then "Rat Court" was held on a Saturday night... The "Rat Court" is for the purpose of "trying" freshman who have violated the rules of the freshmen traditions. Freshmen who had failed to wear their "rat" caps, or had failed to address upperclassmen properly, or had broken any of the traditions were "fined" by the court.

Finally, the climax of the freshman orientation program this year was a field day held on a Saturday. Then the freshmen competed against the upperclassmen. On this note the orientation, or the major part of it, was over for the freshman class. Each year orientation follows a similar pattern and each year both freshmen and upperclassmen enjoy the activities and look forward to each new and different party that comes along.

A. C. coeds lend moral support at freshman versus upperclassmen football game.

The decision of the Rat Court—"Guilty."

DANCES

The Beauty Ball was one of the outstanding social events on the Alabama College campus this year. The Auburn Knights of Revelry provided music amid the splendors of a tropically decorated Bibb Graves Hall. The highlights of the evening was the presentation of the six beauties who had been chosen to be featured in the MONTAGE this year.

The Christmas Dance this year was sponsored by the Junior Class. The Kiwanians from Columbiana made Main Dining Hall ring with an evening of delightful music. As the crowning event of the evening, Miss Judy Bess Robinson was named Snow Queen. Two other major dances to be held this year in the spring will be the S. G. A. Dance and the Freshmon-Sophomore dance.

The latest in spring fashions for both men and women was featured in "Galaxy of Fashions" sponsored by the Montevallo Branch of the American Association of University Women.

In this preview of new spring fashions, the audience saw casual wear for the campus, costumes for travel to warmer climates, cruise clothes, informal and sportswear for men. Also included were high style afternoon and evening dresses, fashions for the career girl, and round-the-clock outfits for both men and women.

FASHION SHOWS

Examples of individual taste, charm, and skill were reflected through the looking glass as the first semester clothing class and tailoring class of the Home Economics Department displayed their outfits in a fashion show. The first year clothing class modeled outfits perfect for Sunday as well as the ideal class wear. The tailoring class displayed custom-made suits.

Religious Emphasis Week

Under the auspices of the Student Christian Association a time each year is designated as Religious Emphasis Week. This year Dr. Albert Kissling, minister of the Riverside Presbyterian Church of Jacksonville, Florida, was the guest speaker.

The Religious Emphasis Committee is composed of representatives from the various religious groups, the Student Christian Association, and the faculty. Their function is to set up the goals, secure the speaker, and plan all the details involved. Central in the planning for this program is the aim toward spiritual stimulation and enlightenment. In addition to the convocation programs, discussion groups are planned so that students and faculty can share ideas and ideals.

Honors Day

The highlight of the program was an address by Dr. S. E. Gerard Priestley of the Alabama College Social Science Department. Special music was provided by the Ramsay High School Glee Club of Birmingham, Alabama.

Dedication Of Margaret McCall Pool

Highlighting the annual Alabama College Founder's Day program was the dedication of the Margaret McCall pool, a memorial honoring the late director of the Department of Physical Education.

Presenting the dedication speech was Dr. John Caldwell, former President of the college. A plaque, unveiled in honor of this event, was given to the school to be placed inside the pool building.

Dr. McCall was chariman of the department of health, physical education, and recreation for twenty-one years, and during these years came to be widely known and respected throught the state because of her various activities at the school.

Of Lions And Lovers

The winning Purple production was a musical in a Roman setting. Caesar orders Pollus, ruler of the Province of Illius, to stage an arena game. In desperation Pollus unwittingly accepts as the gladiator Caesar's own son Antonius, who plans to defeat the lion, using geometrical principles, in order to impress his love, the beautiful Helena. Helena has competition from Salome, who has been promised the victorious gladiator.

The Fear Of The Feet Or "De Feat Fear"

The Gold fantasy centered its action in a tiny feudal nation "district number umpteen under the esteemed leadership of King Fenwick Fosdick the Tooth." The two-inch creatures comprising this community were animal-like individuals, with very human characteristics, called furries. Their greatest concern in life was to stay out from under the "trodding, trampling, stamping feet" of assorted sizes that roamed about their country bringing disaster where ever they landed.

After confronting the "face of a foot" a compromise was made with the feet. The furries were made phosphorescent--by modern sorcery--and the feet gave a warning signal before they fell.

Dedication Of College Night

The appreciation which Alabama College students show to a person who helps them during their College Night Activites is expressed in the dedication of College Night each year.

College Night 1960 was dedicated to Mr. George H. Winslett as a means of expressing our appreciation.

Mr. Winslett, building securities supervisor at Alabama College, has worked on our campus since 1936. During those years he has meant a great deal to College Night. He has helped the Purples and the Golds with lighting, staging, and props. We have come to know him and to appreciate his work with us and for us.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

Janice Wood, S.G.A. President

Forty-three years ago Student Government was begun here at Alabama College. Through the years this Association has been a means by which the students may assume personal responsibility for their conduct and that of their fellow-students in order to develop the attributes necessary to becoming well orientated citizens in our organized democracy.

The powers of government here are exercised through three branches: the executive, the legislative and the judicial. The officers of these branches, elected by the student body, attempt to govern representatively, respecting the desires of administrator and student, and being always conscious of pressing needs and changing conditions. These three parts of the S.G.A., with powers vested in the Executive Council, the Student Courts, the Student Senate, and the auxiliary organizations, perform their respective functions, advised by the Student Government Advisory Committee, thus contributing to the effectiveness of the Association as a well-integrated whole.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

All executive power of the Student Government Association is vested in the Executive Council composed of the top elected student officials on campus. This council enforces all laws and regulations of the Senate and recommends needed legislation to it. As the coordinating body for all student activities, the Executive Council works with such important committees as the Student Organizations Committee, the Social, and the Handbook Committees and the Publications Board.

The Student Senate is the Legislative Branch of the Student Government, its authority being extended to all student activities. In response to requests from members of the student body, the Senate has this year organized a grievance committee, its purpose being to improve S.G.A. by listening to criticisms and recommendations given by members of the student body. In addition, a bill was passed to permit women students to wear Bermuda shorts to meals and in the lobbies on Saturdays until 6:30 p.m. The Senate has also made regulation changes regarding College Night. These are several ways in which the Senate operates in the activities of the Student Government. Officers of the Senate are Flora Clark, president; Carolyn Lewis, vice president; and Peggy Capell, secretary.

The Joint Court is composed of a Chief Justice, an Associate Justice, and three members each of the lower courts. Any cases which carry with them the major penalties of expulsion or suspension, such as those involving cheating, lying or stealing, are heard by this court.

Upon written requst to do so, the Joint Court passes upon the constitutionality of any law of the Senate or of the Executive Committee, and, also upon request, it acts as advisor to these two bodies.

More than a hundred people attended the Servants Party held in Reynolds Hall on December 16. Even Saint Nick himself found time to be present to hand out gifts to all the children. ATHLETICS

BASEBALL 1958-1959

The Alabama College baseball team.

Frank K. Lightfoot, Head Coach.

In its second year of intercollegiate competition AC's newly-named Falcons showed signs of becoming a good sound club. The Falcons, under the direction of Frank Lightfoot, could manage only four wins against eleven losses, but team spirit was good and the idea of seeing the games in the afternoons caught on with the AC student body. Attendance was good, and it became better as time passed. Little gleams of hope, like the Athens game which the Falcons won 18 - 9, seem to indicate thot year number two did get inter-collegiate sports off to a good start. The future does look promising.

Women's Sports And Intramurals

Softball Championship

Diverse recreational activities are offered to the women students at Alabama College through the program of intramurals. Participation in such sports as volleyball, tennis, softball, basketball, swimming, and golf provides the individual with a healthy and enjoyable means of relaxation plus an opportunity to win new friends through team cooperation.

Volleyball intramurals offer an excellent type of relaxation and entertainment for girls in the fall. Two or three teams are formed from each dorm and, after having obtained five practice sessions, the teams begin the round-robin and the tournament. Facilities are offered to the tennis enthusiasts at A.C. through ten well-kept courts. Each term, several matches are held to determine local championships.

Another popular activity which is offered in the spring intramurals is softball. Because it has been dubbed as America's most popular sport, it is only reasonable to assume that it, too, is a well-liked activity in the A.C. intramurals. Also a popular women's sport at A.C. is basketball. Several teams are formed each year for participation in this activity.

A superior facility is offered to the student who enjoys swimming through the modern indoor-outdoor Margaret McCall Pool. To the person who enjoys competition, a swimming team is offered through intramurals. In addition, a golfing tournament is held annually, open to any person who enjoys the game and is interested in competition through intramurals.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

As the final deadline is reached for the 1960 MONTAGE, another event is added to the moments I'll remember here at Alabama College. From the time of my election as editor, to the signing of a contract and selecting staff members, through last-minute decisions concerning Elite Night and the Beauty Ball, and to proof-reading final copy, I have really enjoyed editing our yearbook.

The entire staff has been most cooperative in helping carry out plans for having a good yearbook. I sincerely appreciate the effort, patience, ingenuity, and willingness of each staff member.

I hope that you will cherish your copy of the 1960 MONTAGE and that it will serve as a guide to your college memories.
